quick Java sketch up here. I wish to use R to find the percentage. A: I'll recommend using R. It sounds like you will be doing a bunch of processing, so what I would do is start with a base R package, then write the code you need for your particular problem. For your example, I would use the sp package for spatial statistics. You want the results to be in the form of a SpatialPolygons object. In your example, you will want to use the area attribute of
